

Thinking of Driving the Dwarf from Detroit?

Get the Facts First!

I. Antoine Laumet de La Mothe, sieur de Cadillac, in addition to being a known Jesuit and Fur-Trader, had a hang-gallows Look & the Stink of Mundungus and would reputedly bung his Eye on the Rag Water each Day before the Sun was settled. Are We to trust the word of this seedy, cribbage-faced Fob? It is well known that it was Cadillac himself who kicked le Nain Rouge in the Shin that fateful Day in 1701, not long after chasing the wee Rascal into the Ruffmans like a low Cur. Are We thus to blame the Imp?

II. A Vision of Le Petit Homme Rouge was said to prologue Messr. Dalyell's disastrous Defeat at the hands of Chief Pontiac on the Shore of Parent's Creek, which ran Red with the Blood of Twenty Britons killed along its Banks. Blame not the Imp, but rather the ill-shod Redcoats and their Cork-Brained & Mettlesome Commander for believing his Gutfounded Lobsters & Wablers (long wanting of Porridge due to Pontiac's siege) could defeat twice their Number of well-armed and well-fed Ottawa Warriors. Has Reason Abandoned Ye? A Dwarf dancing along the Strait or the Hubris of Another of His Majesty's Dimwitted Provincial Regimental Officers? Leave the Dwarf be, Reason herself implores You.

III. You say the Nain Rouge was seen during the Great Fire of 1805, so He should be blamed for that Conflagration as well? Hogwash! Think Ye that the Domiciles of Dwarves burn not? Does the Cottage of any Jack Sprat or Tom Thumb burn cooler than the Manor House of a Duke of Limbs or Jack of Legs? Should a Dwarf not be permitted to escape Smoke & Flame and keep the Fire Priggers at bay on such a Dismal Day? Besides, it is Common Knowledge that the Great Glimmer began when the Watchman outside Madame DeBellestre's Bawdy-House tipped his Lantern in a Hay Mow whilst Himself Partaking in the Services of a Hedge Harlot along Griswold Street. But still Ye believe the Dwarf should be Banished?

IV. It is true that Detroit has seen its Share of Calamity in recent Years, and Today its Citisens march to Drive the Red Dwarf from the Straits. Surely a Dwarf is the Culprit of the City's Ills! Do not blame De-Industrialisation, White Flight, Political Corruption, an Eroded Tax Base, Globalisation, Absentee Slumlords, Craw Thumpers, Lully Priggers, Racists, Poverty, Crime, High Taxes, Post-War Suburban Housing Booms, Geography, Messrs. Coleman A. Young & L. Brooks Patterson, Natty Lads, Guttersnipes, Unenforced Blight Ordinances, Feral Dog Packs, Illiteracy, The Polish, Highways, Unions, Suburbanites, Pollution, Corporate Greed, & Michigan Winters! Blame a Dwarf! A particularly Awesome Red Dwarf who's been here for Hundreds of Years?
